

Kzmatic, Lich Lord

Kzmatic was once a power hungry apprentice striving to learn the ways of magic from Zondora, the first and undoubtedly most powerful wizard of Novus. After several years of watching and learning, but also as a servant to Zondora, Kzmatic became frustrated and impatient with the learning process. He began stealing magical items stashed in Zondoras towers, including weapons, scrolls, potions, rings, and more.

At the point where Kzmatic felt he had enough of his own spellcasting abilities, combined with all the items he taken when Zondora was unaware, he attempted to teleport into Zondora chambers and destroy him. Zondora would not be taken so easily, though. After a magical duel never before seen on Novus, Zondora struck Kzmatic down with a killing blow. So disgusted by the betrayal, he brought the dead apprentice back to life and banished him to a magical keep in the Abandoned Wastelands to spend his undead life in misery, with all of the items he had stolen.

And there Kzmatic remains, seeking to escape as he develops an undead army...
