

Kroenig, Ice Giant

Kroenig was once just a human viking who sailed the seas, raiding villages and destroying any ships who got in his way. He was the commander of his crew, leading them to countless victories.

When the magical storms tore apart Novus they also tore apart the seas. Kroenig's crew was all tossed overboard or died from being tossed about the vessel. Kroenig held on to the ship even as it sunk, watching the swirling waters of a water vortex swallow the ship, and him, into its cold, dark abyss.

The magic in the air, and water, of Novus caused him to grow to mammoth proportions. As the heavier pieces of ship fell to the great unknown below, Kroenig survived the ship's destruction, and within a short time he began to grow, and grow, and grow.

Now Kroenig lives alone and secluded on an island made from massive glacier chunks. He swims to the mainland on occasion, destroying anything he encounters, including groups of vikings that survived the Maelstrom.
